

FROM THIS HOUSE,
A FEW SELECT PEOPLE
SHAPED HISTORY.

Now you can own a symbol of that history.

n October 13, 1792, masons laid the White House cornerstone, beginning 200 years of remarkable history.

Within the walls of the White House, President Lincoln made his momentous decision to free the slaves by signing the Emancipation Proclamation... Mrs. Madison, within earshot of British cannon fire, courageously saved a now priceless portrait of George Washington—and President Roosevelt met with Prime Minister Churchill to lay the foundation for the cooperation that proved so crucial to the Allied victory.

It's a rich history, indeed. And now, it's yours to own.

A Celebration of Elegant Simplicity.

As distinctive as the home it honors.

To pay tribute to the White House on its 200th anniversary, the U.S. Mint, by Act of Congress, has created a very special silver dollar. In fact, with a maximum authorized mintage of just five hundred thousand coins, The White House 200th Anniversary Coin is the lowest authorized mintage figure for a commemorative silver dollar in nearly 100 years—since the Lafayette Silver Dollar of 1900.

Of course, mintage is not the only benchmark against which great coins are judged. To become a classic, a coin should also be aesthetically pleasing.

As beautiful as the home it honors.

The White House Commemorative Silver Dollar is a stunning addition to any collection. The coin's obverse depicts the graceful lines of the north portico of the White House. The reverse features the bust of James Hoban, the original architect of the White House, in front of the elegant main entrance he designed.

Both proof and uncirculated versions of The White House 200th Anniversary Coin are available. Proof versions of this coin are struck multiple times from highly polished dies, a process which highlights the intricate details of the coin against a mirror-like background. Furthermore, the proof version offers you the added advantage of being the first proof silver dollar commemorative to bear the West Point mint mark.

By purchasing this silver dollar, you're not only commemorating the White House's 200th anniversary, you're helping preserve its rich legacy for future generations. For each coin you buy, a ten dollar surcharge will be paid to The White House Endowment Fund. This fund will be used as a permanent source of support for the White House Collection of fine art and historic furnishings as well as the maintenance of the historic public rooms of the White House.

This legal tender silver dollar coin weighs 26.73 grams. Composition: 90% silver (.76 troy ounce), 10% copper. Diameter: 1.500 inches. Mint and Mark: Proof, West Point ("W"); Uncirculated, Denver ("D").
